School and homes shape young minds
Each child like the soft clay that a potter refines,
The potter picks up the rough clay
With deft hands begins to play.
Rolls it, then folds it
Then works on to mould it
And finally the real test
As in the furnace the loved creation rests
In the mind is the quest...
Will it turn out to be the best?
The efforts are ne'er in vain
Even through the fire and the pain
Emerges something new
Glowing, shapely, uniquely formed
A new person in the making!
Not finished yet, but infinitely promising!

Dear Parents,

Parents and teachers are like the potter who refines, moulds and shapes your children to help face the challenges of life.

This summer we have put together some interesting project work for our young minds. These are listed subject wise in subsequent pages.

As parents, you may supervise your child's work but please ensure that the assignment is done entirely by the child's own effort, as only by doing themselves, will they truly learn. Here are some overall guidelines:

1. Inculcate important life skills in addition to academics, and there is no better place than home to hone these skills. Charity begins at home! So let's encourage our children to perform these simple tasks:
  - a. Let them layout the dining table and pick up their plates after every meal and put them for washing.
  - b. Encourage them to clean their cupboards and organise their books every week.
  - c. As far as possible get them to make their beds every morning.

Remember our little push will help them take a leap!

General Instructions

- 2.Please encourage your ward to read newspaper, books, or story books.
- 3.Students has to do project work in Scrapbook.
- 4.Homework completion is mandatory for all students.
